Marcy Henry, Consultant

Dr. Marcy Henry knows when educators create a safe learning environment that enables students to connect to something they care about; the former creates the opportunity for the latter to thrive. As a teacher and administrator Marcy has witnessed complete transformation in the school and the classroom when school personnel understand and consistently implement the professional skills, and techniques taught in the Comprehensive Behavior Management Program. As a practitioner of and consultant for the Simmons' School Discipline Solutions Program she has helped schools create a teachable learning environment so that all students are successful.

Dr Henry's career in education has spanned both rural and large city school environments. She began this lifetime commitment to children as a teacher in New York City and then moved to rural Vermont and New Hampshire where she served as a school principal at all grade levels, K-12, and as an Assistant Superintendent.

In addition to working with Simmons Associates as a consultant, she has done workshops and presentations in the area of teacher evaluation. Among those presentations was "Designing and Implementing Relational Teacher Evaluations" presented at ASCD. Dr. Henry has also been a training consultant on Strategic Planning and the Turning Points School Reform Model. And is an adjunct professor at the University of Vermont.

"I've learned more at this seminar than all others put together. Marcy Henry had an excellent command of the material. She is a dynamic and motivational trainer with usable and practical information to share. Fantastic!"
